HAWAIIAN TALK.

Mr. Vest Surprises the Senate by Some of His Utterances.

NOT AN ADMINISTRATION DEFENDER.

To Restore the Queen by Force an Act of War.

MR. STEVENS ATTACKED.

The speech of Mr. Vest in the Senate yeslate to be known as a "cuckoo speech" by any means. It was very evident from the way in which the Senator from Missouri took the floor to reply to Senator Frye that the force of the publication of this scandal his address was in the nature of a surprise, if not a disappointment, to the regular defenders of the administration. As soon as primed with the purpose of defending the administration from the charge of unconstitutionality, and it was not pleasant for him to hear Mr. Vest getting off the very argument that he had secured. The document was Senate Miscellaneous 109, 1888, the minority report of the committee on foreign relations, signed by Senators Morgan, Saulsbury, Brown and Payne, in support of the manner of President Cleveland in his negotiation of the fisheries treaty. A list of some 438 persons who had received commissions from the President and the Secretary of State was therein given to carry out the contention that those officials have authority to appoint diplomatic agents without the consent of the Senate.

Nor was the succeeding part of Mr. Vest's speech any more soothing to the soul of the Senate from Delaware Mr. Vest callided.

Pin, Sword Chain Pins and Hat Pins in Enamel, plain and stone setting. Regular value, $1.25 and $1.50. Force. He said: "I do not understand that Mr. gan by alluding to the increasing interest Gresham, the Secretary of State, meant that that was taken at the present day in the armed force would be employed. He is an study of philosophy in this country, though eminent jurist. He has just come from the we are so eminently a people of practical bench. After stating his profound convic- endeavor. tion, in which I share, that the provisional government is the result of a mercenary guished from what is known as science onspiracy on the part of a few adventurers conspiracy on the part of a few adventurers and that a majority of the people of the Hawaiian Islands do not participate in it, he simply puts a hypothetical question, whether under the plainest principles of equitable jurisdiction it would be our duty as a great people to redress the wrong, if it had been committed, and restore the status quo. When the papers come in answer to the resolution of the Senator from Massachusetts we shall know, I trust, what instructions were given to Mr. Willis. If it shall turn out that those instructions were to restore the queen by armed force, no one will resist the doctrine to any extremity more than myself.

has claims which cannot be ignored, and the American people must come to it. There is vastly more in intellectual life than the observation of sensible phenomena, their classification and their distribution under law. The existence of the society he was addressing was an evidence of this. But even here there was some friction between the scientific and the philosophical. But this must disappear. The scientist, if logical, must become a philosopher. Science leads up to philosophy and philosophy self.

As Related to Each Other.

The relation between philosophy and That Would Be an Act of War. "I repeat that it would be an act of war: and it seems to me impossible that the Secretary of State and the President of the United States should have come to the conclusion that without the action of Congress explained by philosophy. Second, after they could do any such thing. But as I unscience has abstracted and generalize and derstand the position of the administration arranged particular phenomena under a now as given in the instructions to Mr. special law, this law must be assigned its derstand the position of the administration now as given in the instructions to Mr. Blount, which I have read, it is simply a repetition and affirmation of the time-honored doctrine of our country in every administration, that we should not interfere in the domestic affairs of other people, but content ourselves with the plain right of every nation to protect the property and persons of its citizens who are residing in a foreign country for legitimate ends.

Let Them Settle It Themselves.

"If I had the power I would withdraw every shadow of United States authority from the Hawaiian Islands, except in so far as it was necessary to protect under international law the property and persons of American citizens legitimately residing there. I would leave the opposing factions to settle the question of sovereignty for themselves. There can be no solution of this question so absolute and determinate as that which would then be had between the adherents of Queen Lilliuokalani and the provisional government. The doctrine of the States through all our history has been that the people should determine their own government—not the educated people, but, under God, the people, rich and poor, high and low. I would leave it to the people, but, under God, the people, rich and poor, high and low. I would leave it to the people, but, under God, the people, rich and poor, high and low. I would leave it to the people, but, under God, the people, rich and poor, high and low. I would leave it to the people, but they will not down at its bidding, but return again and again to rack and to torture the mind until an answer shall be given.

The bishop closed his interesting remarks with an encomium on the vigor and acute-hear and citizens to deter the formation of the ment of the states through all our history has been that the people should determine their own government—not the educated people, but, under God, the people, rich and poor, high and low. I would leave the opinion of the provisional government on the provisional government h there. I would leave the opposing factions to settle the question of sovereignty for themselves. There can be no solution of this question so absolute and determinate as that which would then be had between the adherents of Queen Liliuokalani and the provisional government. The doctrine of the United States through all our history has been that the people should determine their own government—not the educated people, not the titled people, not the opulent people, not the titled people, not the opulent people, but, under God, the people, rich and poor, high and low. I would leave it to the people of those islands of all classes who are legitimate residents there and citizens to determine this question for themselves. Four our government now to put back this woman upon the throne, if the provisional government be de facto, is an act of war, and I will not believe that the President has contemplated it. For us to take part with the provisional government is to give proof that the military authority of this government is to be used in a doubtful issue by turning the scales against an overwhelming popular majority of the people.

Let the Queen Look Out for Herself.

"Therefore, Mr. President, let it be understood once for all that whatever differences of opinion there may be about this question, there is no reason and no excuse for assalling the reputation for truth of a man of Mr. Blount's record, and I challenge this chamber and the country to produce one of superior whiteness or purity." At the request of Senator Pasco, acting for Mr. Gray, who had gone home, the resolution of Senator Hoar was referred to the committee on foreign relations.

EX-MARSHAL WILSON'S BLUFF.

His Libel Suits So Regarded by Old Residents of Honolulu.

The news from Honolulu of the libel sui brought by ex-Marshal Wilson against Editor Smith of the Honolulu Star created much comment at San Francisco among terday afternoon was not what has come of old residents of Hawaii who have known Liliuokalani for years. One of these, Dr. Geo. L. Fitch, says:

"Wilson's action is a mere bluff to break he was not talking by the card, and that that has been talked about in Honolulu for years, but was never printed in the Engif not a disappointment, to the regular defenders of the administration. As soon as Mr. Frye had concluded, both Senators Vest and Gray were on their feet, and there was a pause of some moments before the large man from the little state gave way to the little man from the large state. There was such a lack of concerted action on the part of the democratic Senators that it was rather in the nature of a surprise to hear Mr. Vest attack ex-Minister Stevens. But he carefully defined his position at the outset as not being that of a defender of the administration. He confined himself almost exclusively to a sectional arraignment of Mr. Stevens and his friends, and he went so far into the question of his motives that he accused him of having fiaunted the traditional bloody shirt in Hawaii. Incidentally, Mr. Vest did a good deal of waving of that unpleasant formative that he had secused him of hoving fiaunted the traditional bloody shirt in Hawaii. Incidentally, Mr. Vest did a good deal of waving of that unpleasant garment himself, and it is thought he thus paved the way for some red-hot sectional speeches in the future.

Stealing Senator Gray's Thunder. Senator Gray was perceptibly disturbed when Mr. Vest produced a document from which he proceeded to draw a number of so-called precedents for the appointment of Commissioner Blount. The Senator from Delaware had provided himself with this ammunition and had gone to the Capiton primed with the purpose of defending the administration from the charge of unconstitutionality, and it was not pleasant for him to hear Mr. Vest getting off the very argument that he had secured. Bishop Keane, rector of the Catholic University in this city, read an interesting paper before the Society for Philosophical Inquiry at the Columbian University Tuesday afternoon. His subject was the rela-tion of philosophy to science. He employed Senator from Delaware. Mr. Vest qualified his support of the administration to such an extent that he practically condemned it under certain hypotheses that are pretty being which underlies and supports the being which underlies and supports the world of sensible phenomena; in which lat-
